AMENDMENTS TO THE CLAIMS

LISTING OF CLAIMS IN THE CASE:

The following listing of claims replaces all previous versions.

1-27. (Cancelled)

28. (New) A computer-implemented method of processing an electronically placed order that requires valid configuration and approval, said method comprising:

receiving an electronically placed order comprising a first valid product configuration, wherein validity of product configuration is based on rules that change over time;

accepting an approval for the order regardless of whether said order is still a valid configuration if less than a pre-determined period of time has expired between said receiving the order and said approval for the order;

after said determining, receiving a second valid product configuration that complies with said rules with said changes; and maintaining said acceptance of said approval after said receiving the second valid product configuration, wherein processing of said order is completed based on said approval that was received prior to said receiving said second valid configuration.

29. (New) The method of Claim 28, wherein said accepting the approval comprises accepting said approval at a time when said first product configuration is invalid due to said changes to said rules.

30. (New) The method of Claim 28, further comprising rejecting said order if more than the pre-determined period of time has expired between said receiving the order and the approval and if said first product configuration is invalid due to changes to said rules.

31. (New) The method of Claim 28 further comprising altering a parameter specifying said pre-determined period of time.

32. (New) The method of Claim 28 wherein said pre-determined period of time is based on an expected amount of time for said order to be approved.

33. (New) The method of Claim 28 wherein said pre-determined period of time is based on a rate at which said rules change.

34. (New) The method of Claim 28 wherein said electronically placed order further comprises fields for required order processing information.
